Passage A

A In the city of Greyford, many students travelled by car even though a bus stopped near their college. The transport team first assumed that students disliked public transport. A short survey suggested a more practical explanation. Students said that the bus sometimes arrived early and sometimes very late. Missing one could mean waiting half an hour for the next. They wanted a journey they could plan, not simply a lower ticket price.

B The team checked records from the buses and observed the route during the morning rush hour. One junction caused long delays because buses waited with cars turning towards a shopping centre. Drivers also lost time at a busy stop where people had to buy tickets from them. The investigation helped the team separate different causes of delay. A faster bus on one part of the route would not solve a queue at the next stop.

C A three-month trial introduced several changes. Buses received extra time to pass through the busy junction, and students could buy a weekly ticket at the college office. The bus company also agreed that drivers would not leave an important stop before the published time. These changes were explained on a simple route map. A staff member visited the college to show students how the new arrangement worked and answer questions before the trial began.

D Getting to a stop mattered too. Students living farther away said they could cycle to the route, but worried about leaving their bicycles. The college installed covered bicycle parking near its busiest bus stop. It did not ask everyone to make the same journey. Some students still needed a car because they lived in places without a useful bus connection. The project aimed to make another choice practical for more people, not to criticize every driver.

Passage A

E At the end of the trial, fewer buses arrived very late, and more students reported using the service regularly. The team also checked total journey time, including the walk or cycle to the stop and any waiting. A quicker ride did not necessarily mean a quicker trip from home. Some students still found the evening service inconvenient. The team recorded this problem instead of using the morning results to claim that the whole timetable now worked well.

F The next plan kept the successful morning changes and tested one later bus in the evening. The college continued collecting comments from students who used the service and those who did not. Their reasons could reveal barriers that passenger numbers alone would miss. Greyford's experience showed why a transport project should begin with people's actual journeys. Reliable times, clear information and a useful connection can matter as much as the speed of the vehicle itself.

Questions 1-5 Build sentences

Put the word groups in order. Use each group once. Do not add words or change word forms. Record each full sentence.

1. Start with "The bus route".
cheaper than / is / a taxi / The bus route

2. Start with "Cycling".
way to cross town / the fastest / Cycling / is

3. Start with "A crash".
caused / A crash / on the bridge / serious trouble

4. Start with "New signals".
at the junction / traffic / New signals / can control

5. Start with "This lane".
This lane / on traffic flow / has / a huge impact

Questions 6-10 Complete the replies

Read each situation and follow its clue to complete the reply. Record the whole reply.

6. Situation: Workers are putting a barrier across the road before repairs begin. Choose block or avoid.

Friend: Why are they putting the barrier there?

You: It will _____ the road while they work.

7. Situation: A bus is safer than a motorbike. Choose safer or safest.

Friend: Which is safer for this trip?

You: The bus is _____ than the motorbike.

8. Situation: You need the best route. Choose fastest or faster.

Friend: Which route should we take?

You: This is the _____ route to the station.

9. Situation: A crash causes a major delay for traffic. Choose improvement or impact.

Friend: What effect does the crash have?

You: It has a huge _____ on traffic.

10. Situation: Drivers face a difficult delay. Choose control or cope.

Friend: How do drivers manage the delay?

You: They must _____ with the delay.

Questions 11-15 Order and speak

Put sentences A-C in order. Record the opening, then read all three sentences in the correct order. Do not read the letters.

11. Explain a traffic problem and a solution.

Opening: My street has one problem at rush hour.

A	The city could add a clear bus lane.
B	Cars block the bus stop every morning.
C	This would help buses move more easily.

12. Compare two ways to travel to school.

Opening: I have two choices for travelling to school.

A	I choose the bus when I have enough time.
B	However, the bus stop is closer to my home.
C	The underground is faster than the bus.

13. Describe a crash and its effect.

Opening: Yesterday, something delayed our journey.

A	Traffic became slower on the nearby road.
B	Many passengers arrived late at the station.
C	A small crash happened near the junction.

14. Recommend a route.

Opening: My friend asked me for travel advice.

A	I recommend using it in the afternoon.
B	It stays away from the main road.
C	The cycle path is the safest route to the park.

15. Explain a traffic-control idea.

Opening: Our class discussed traffic at the school gate.

A	A crossing officer could control the traffic.
B	This might make the area easier to cross.
C	Cars often stop outside the gate.

Questions 16-18 Follow the model

Use the model to make your own answer in 3-4 connected sentences. Write key words, then record your answer.

16. Describe one transport problem near a school and give a simple solution.

Model: Cars stop near our school gate every morning. This causes trouble for buses. The school could mark a clear drop-off area. It would keep the entrance more organized.

17. Compare two ways to travel to a sports centre.

Model: The bus is cheaper than a taxi. It also stops near the sports centre. Cycling is faster than walking, but the road is busy. I would take the bus.

18. Explain how a busy junction affects a journey.

Model: The junction near the market has heavy traffic. Cars wait for a long time at the lights. New signal timings could control the traffic better. This might reduce the delay.

Questions 19-20 Follow the model

Use the model to make your own answer in 3-4 connected sentences. Write key words, then record your answer.

19. Recommend a transport change for a local area.

Model: I recommend a cycle lane near the library. Many students cycle there after class. The lane would separate bicycles from cars. It could make the route safer.

20. Describe a solution that helps people avoid traffic.

Model: My family avoids the main road after work. We use a quieter street behind the park. It is a little longer, but it has less traffic. This makes our journey calmer.
