Finding a Route at Your Own Pace Passage B

A Maya, who had recently moved to Brookdale, joined a community orienteering-walk course after seeing a notice at the library. She was an adult beginner and did not join because she wanted medical advice or a demanding fitness test. She wanted to feel more confident finding her way through parks and streets. At the first meeting, the leader explained that the course offered three route lengths. Participants chose a route after looking at its surface, hills and stopping points; no one was placed on a longer route simply because of age.

B Each walker made a personal aim for the four-week course. Maya chose to read a simple map without asking for every turning instruction and to complete the middle route at a comfortable pace. Another participant aimed to recognise landmarks, while a third wanted to practise planning a route with a friend. The leader asked people to write their own aims on a card, but did not compare them in public. This made progress something participants could describe for themselves instead of a competition based on one finishing time.

C Early sessions concentrated on map skills. A volunteer showed how colours, contour lines and symbols represented paths, slopes and public buildings. Small teams received the same map but different checkpoints, so they had to explain decisions to one another rather than follow a single confident person. When Maya mistook a service road for a footpath, her team stopped, checked the symbol key and compared the map with a bridge visible ahead. The correction mattered more than pretending that the wrong turn had not happened.

Finding a Route at Your Own Pace Passage B

D Rain changed the third session. A steep woodland section became slippery, and the leader replaced it with a paved loop near the sports centre. Participants were told why the route had changed and were invited to choose a shorter version if they preferred. The team did not treat staying indoors as failure, but it also did not continue on a surface that had become unsafe. Maya helped another walker compare the revised map with the original one, which showed that cooperation could be useful even when each person had a different goal.

E At the final meeting, participants looked back at their first and last route cards. Maya could identify landmarks and explain why she had selected a particular turn, although she still checked the map often in unfamiliar streets. The group recorded comments about confidence, map reading and enjoyment, rather than claiming that every person had become fitter. The organisers planned another course with both short and longer options. They described success as making informed choices and noticing individual progress, not reaching a single standard for every adult. Several said that choosing a route for themselves made them more willing to return to the park. The leaders kept those comments beside the route cards, because a completed distance did not reveal whether a participant had understood or enjoyed the journey.

Questions 1-5 Build sentences

Put the word groups in order. Use each group once. Do not add words or change word forms. Record each full sentence.

1. Start with "Our programme".
solves / a clear problem / Our programme

2. Start with "The walking group".
gives / a social activity / The walking group / students

3. Start with "This idea".
relax / This idea / could help / busy students

4. Start with "First".
we / First / need to explain / the problem

5. Start with "The main benefit".
is / easy participation / The main benefit

Questions 6-10 Complete the replies

Read each situation and follow its clue to complete the reply. Record the whole reply.

6. Situation: Your notes show that students have little time after school for activity. Choose problem or solve.

Friend: What should you explain first?

You: First, I would explain the _____.

7. Situation: Your group suggests a short walking club to address the lack of after-school activity. Choose solve or solution.

Friend: What could the school offer?

You: A short walking group is one _____.

8. Situation: Your notes say that the walking group is free and anyone can join it. Choose beneficial or benefit.

Friend: What is one good point about the plan?

You: The main _____ is that anyone can join.

9. Situation: You are explaining why the plan is easy to run: it needs no special equipment. Choose because or although.

Friend: Why is the plan practical?

You: It is practical _____ it needs no special equipment.

10. Situation: You are ending a short talk after giving two reasons why busy students could join the programme. Choose recommend or recommendation.

Friend: What is your final view?

You: I _____ this programme for busy students.

Questions 11-15 Order and speak

Put sentences A-C in order. Record the opening, then read all three sentences in the correct order. Do not read the letters.

11. Put these sentences in a clear order.

Opening: I noticed one problem after our last lesson.

A	A short walk after class could help.
B	It needs no special equipment.
C	Many students sit indoors until late.

12. Put these sentences in a clear order.

Opening: Here is an idea our school could try next term.

A	The club could meet twice a week.
B	Some students want a social activity.
C	This gives them a regular time to talk.

13. Put these sentences in a clear order.

Opening: I have one reason for supporting this programme.

A	Students can choose a suitable activity.
B	That makes participation easier.
C	The programme offers several simple options.

14. Put these sentences in a clear order.

Opening: Our class discussed a small change to lunchtime.

A	It could give them a short break.
B	A five-minute stretch could be a solution.
C	Many students stay at their desks.

15. Put these sentences in a clear order.

Opening: I would like to finish with one practical suggestion.

A	The school could lend simple equipment.
B	Then more students could join the activity.
C	Some students do not own a ball or helmet.

Questions 16-18 Follow the model

Use the model to help you make one focused paragraph of 4-5 sentences. Write key words, then record your answer.

16. Propose a walking group for busy students.

Model: Many students sit indoors after class. I suggest a short walking group. It could meet twice a week near the gate. The group needs no special equipment. I think it is a practical idea.

17. Suggest a short break activity at school.

Model: Students often stay at their desks during lunch. A five-minute stretch could be one solution. Teachers can show three simple movements. The activity is easy to explain. I recommend trying it for one week.

18. Present an idea for a beginner sports club.

Model: Some students are nervous about joining a team. I suggest a beginner football club. The coach can use small groups. Students can practise basic passes. This may make the club easier to join.

Questions 19-20 Follow the model

Use the model to help you make one focused paragraph of 4-5 sentences. Write key words, then record your answer.

19. Explain why a school should provide simple equipment.

Model: Not every student owns a bicycle helmet. The school could lend a few helmets. This would help students join a cycling activity. The equipment can be checked before use. I think the idea is fair.

20. Recommend a social activity for a rainy day.

Model: Rain sometimes stops outdoor plans. I suggest an indoor table-tennis hour. Students can play in pairs. They can talk while they wait for a turn. This is a social activity for a wet day.

Questions 11-15 Choose the sentence order

Read sentences A-C. Tick one sequence for each question.

11. Put these sentences in a clear order.

A	A gardening club could give them a regular shared task.
B	For this reason, the school should offer one.
C	Many students want an activity they can do together after class.

☐ A-B-C ☐ A-C-B ☐ C-A-B

12. Put these sentences in a clear order.

A	A noticeboard campaign could list times, places and equipment.
B	Some students are unsure where to find information about school activities.
C	This would make the choices easier to compare.

☐ C-A-B ☐ B-A-C ☐ A-C-B

13. Put these sentences in a clear order.

A	Students could still meet and play on wet days.
B	An indoor table-tennis session would provide another option.
C	Outdoor games are enjoyable, but rain can cancel them.

☐ C-B-A ☐ B-A-C ☐ C-A-B

14. Put these sentences in a clear order.

Writing Homework 3

Book 3 Unit 5

Questions 16-18 Follow the model

Use the model to help you make one focused paragraph of 4-5 sentences. Write your own answer with different details.

16. Write a 4-5 sentence paragraph giving your opinion about a school gardening club. State an opinion, give a reason and finish with a recommendation.

Model: In my view, the school should offer a gardening club. Students could work together after class. The club would give them a shared outdoor task. For example, they could water plants and use small tools. For these reasons, I support the idea.

17. Write a 4-5 sentence paragraph explaining the purpose of an activity-information campaign. Include its purpose, two details and a result.

Model: The purpose of an activity-information campaign is to give students clear choices. Posters could show club times and meeting places. A noticeboard could also list simple equipment. Students could read the information during a break. This would help them choose an activity.

18. Write a 4-5 sentence paragraph that contrasts an outdoor activity with an indoor option. Use but and end with your view.

Model: Outdoor football is exciting, but rain can stop a game. The school could offer table tennis indoors on wet days. Students would still have a place to meet after class. This option needs a room and a table. I think both activities are useful.

Questions 19-20 Follow the model

Use the model to help you make one focused paragraph of 4-5 sentences. Write your own answer with different details.

19. Write a 4-5 sentence paragraph supporting the idea of lending simple sports equipment. Include a main argument and a specific example.

Model: The school should lend simple sports equipment at lunchtime. Some students do not bring a ball from home. For example, a teacher could keep a few balls near the field. Students could borrow one and return it after the game. This would let more students join the activity.

20. Write a 4-5 sentence concluding paragraph recommending one practical school activity. Summarize the idea and state a final recommendation.

Model: A short walking group is a practical activity for after school. It needs a clear route and a meeting time. Friends can join the group together. The plan is easy to explain on a noticeboard. For these reasons, I recommend trying it next term.
