Passage B - A Record Sale of a Rare Car

A On 5 May 2022, a Mercedes-Benz 300 SLR Uhlenhaut Coupé was sold at an auction in Stuttgart for 135 million euros. RM Sotheby's worked with Mercedes-Benz on the sale, held at the company's museum. The buyer was a private collector. The auction house announced the result later that month as a record car sale. The extremely valuable vehicle was one of only two prototypes built in 1955. Its name included that of Rudolf Uhlenhaut, the engineer associated with its creation. This was a particular historical object, rather than an ordinary car available in large numbers. The announcements clearly identified the model and its year of construction.

B The company had owned the car since it was built. Among the people invited to the sale were selected customers and international collectors of cars and art. The purchase therefore occurred in a specialist collecting market, with a very limited supply of this model. A buyer able to pay that amount was clearly wealthy, but the sale did not describe what most drivers could afford. Nor did it provide a price for every old Mercedes. The exact model, its history and the circumstances of the sale all mattered to the record.

C The second original coupé remained in company ownership. Mercedes-Benz said it would continue to be displayed in the Stuttgart museum. The private buyer also agreed that the sold car could be accessible for public display on special occasions. Ownership and public access therefore followed different arrangements for the two cars. Selling one did not mean that both had left the collection. These details connected the value of a rare object with its place in engineering history, rather than describing the auction simply as the movement of money between two people.

Passage B - A Record Sale of a Rare Car

D The company announced that the proceeds would establish the Mercedes-Benz Fund. Its planned scholarships would support education and research connected with environmental science and reducing carbon emissions. The announcement described support for university students and school pupils, including people without enough money for such projects. Assistance was intended to include mentoring as well as financial help. These were stated aims for using the sale proceeds. A plan to fund education was different from a report that every planned scholarship had already been awarded.

E The record price attracted attention, but it did not give a complete investment calculation for the new owner. An investment return requires a comparison with costs and receipts over time. The 2022 sale established a transaction price for that vehicle on that date, not its eventual resale price. It also did not establish future demand for all classic cars. The historical record can be clearly understood without turning it into a general promise that buying an old vehicle will produce a profit.

Speaking Homework 2

Book 3 Unit 8

Questions 11-15 Order and speak

Put sentences A-C in order. Record the opening, then read all three sentences in the correct order. Do not read the letters.

11. Explain a group target.

Opening: We worked out a simple plan for the club fund.

A Saving ten pounds each week would reach that amount in six weeks.
B The group needs sixty pounds.
C We will check our progress against this six-week plan at each weekly meeting.

12. Explain a changed purchase.

Opening: We had to adjust the materials list.

A We replaced that set with a smaller one.
B The smaller set leaves enough money for printing.
C The first set of supplies cost more than our budget.

13. Describe a payment record.

Opening: Several people are helping at the sale.

A After this check, the group adds up the approved entries.
B At the end, another student checks those entries against the receipts.
C One student writes each payment in a notebook.

14. Explain a choice about a trip.

Opening: The group compared two ways to travel.

A That extra cost would leave less money for tickets.
B The group therefore chose the coach.
C The train would cost more than the coach.

15. Explain a responsibility.

Opening: I would want the plan to be clear to everyone.

A Those costs would be shared with the group.
B If I managed the fund, I would write down each cost.
C Members could then discuss which items were most important.

Questions 16-18 Follow the model

Use the model to help you express different content in 4 connected sentences. Write key words, then record your answer.

16. Club target: £60. Saving £10 weekly. Explain the plan and how to review it.

Model using different data: Our class needs forty pounds for a project. If we save five pounds weekly, we will reach it in eight weeks. We can record each weekly amount. If the plan changes, we will update the record.

17. Imagine a class event has limited money. Explain how you would choose between two purchases.

Model: If I managed the event fund, I would compare the printing and decoration costs. Clear instructions are necessary for visitors. I would pay for those first. We could make simple decorations from existing materials.

18. Describe a practical way to share responsibility for payments at a sale.

Model: One student could receive payments. Another could record the amounts. If they checked the totals together, they might notice a missed entry. The teacher could help resolve any difference.

Questions 19-20 Follow the model

Use the model to help you express different content in 4 connected sentences. Write key words, then record your answer.

19. Describe how a group could respond when a planned item costs too much. Use two conditions.

Model: If the original supplies cost too much, we will compare a smaller set. If that set meets our needs, we can choose it. We should also check the delivery cost. The final total matters for the plan.

20. Imagine a group fundraising activity. Explain its purpose, a condition and a record you would keep.

Model: Our group could sell used books for the library fund. If families agree, they can contribute books. We would list the money received during the sale. That record would show how close we are to the target.
